Recital at Texas Building-Mrs. Lyon Returns From New York -Special Railroad Rates From Indiana.

"In defraying the transportation and traveling expenses of California visitors to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, their hotel and other expenses while here, and in the erection of a State building and installing of exhibits and their maintenance, nearly $10,000,000 will have been expended by the State of California and its people when the World's Fair comes to a close," said Commissioner Frank Wiggins of that State.

"I figure that it costs every California visitor an even $100 before he enters the World's Fair grounds. The railroad fare at the cheapest is $7.50, and with the sleeping car fare and meals and other expenses on the way, it will come pretty close to the century mark. Seventeen thousand citizens of the Golden State have already visited the Fair, so $1,700,000 has been spent just in coming here. All of the visitors have remained as long as two

"Some of my more enthusiastic friends have estimated that 50,000 more visitor will come before the Fair closes, so I think my estimate of 30.00 is conservative. At the same basis $5,00,90 additions will be expended. Add these figures to the $225,000 which will have been expended by the commission up to December 1, and it will be seen that the total expenditures of the State and its citizens will amount to $3,-e25,000.

Work was inaugurated yesterday on the the honor of escorting, at some time or another evalidation of photographic term passes other, every President of the United States. to the World's Fair. The first day's work was very light, and the pass-holders who wended their way to room No. 202, Division of Works building, bearing their pass books and certificates for revalidation, were few and far between. They consisted for the most part of the first dribblings of the Exposition employes. The room in which the revalidating process will be carried out has a very formidable appearance, well calculated to inspire terror in the bosoms of those who have doubts as to their rights to a pass. Mr. Tuttle has had three rows of counters constructed, at the ends of each of which are stationed the revalidating clerks. Chutes for the accommodation of the pass-holders run the length of the pass-holders run the length of the pass-holders run the length of the victim must pass in one direction until he emerges with his revalidated pass.

Pygmies and Ainus Seek Shelter for Night in Indian School.

RESEMBLES NOAH'S

Savages Insist on Taking Pets From Jungle Homes With Them to Escape Terrors of Lightning.

The Indian School building at the World's Fair, which was converted into an emergency hotel last night, to accommodate the several families of Indiana, Ainus and pygmies who were driven out of their camps by the heavy rainstorm, resembled a good imitation of Noah's Ark.

Nearly every guest who applied there last night for temporary lodging was accompanied by some sort of pet animal. The pygmies, with their new blankets tucked under their arms, brought their pet monkey and parrots. The pygmies brought these pets from their jungle home in Africa, and they positively refused to leave them in camp to the terrors of the lightning and wind.

The Patagonian chieftain brought his little yellow dog, which is the mascot of the Patagonian party, and treated as one of the family. He also refused to register at the hotel without the pet dog.

Other members of Indian families were accompanied by their pet dogs and birds.

Arrangements were made for the accommodation of the pet animals in the basement of the school building, and not until this was done did the strange guests basement of the school building, and not until this was done did the strange guests decide to accept the hospitality of Doctor McCowan for the night.

The heavy rain and wind storm of the afternoon and early evening played havoo with the frail-homes of the savage tribes encamped on the Exposition grounds. The tents and homes constructed of brush and tree limbs failed to defy the ravages of the storm. Most of them leaked badly and made it impossible for the people to occupy them last night with any degree of comfort.

Early in the afternoon the canvas tent of the pygmics began to leak badly during the first hard rainstorm, and the little black people from the jungle were forced to abandon their abode and seek protection from the rain in the Indian School building, the nearest place of shelter.

The Alnus of Japan, whose brush-covered house is located at the foot of Indian Hill, suffered considerable inconvenience from the storm by the water rushing down the hill into their homes.

They also abandoned their home early yesterday afternoon and sought safety and comfort at the Indian School.

George W. George T. Coxhead, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., expects all the members of the St. Louis organization to be enthusiastic supporters of participation in the celebration.

Will Be Given Next Tuesday Night In the Stadium. The big fireworks display which was scheduled to take place in the Stadium at the World's Fair grounds last night was postponed until next Tuesday night on account of the condition of the grounds as a result of the heavy downpour of rain during the day. The vast space just outside the arena to which visitors are ad-side the arena to which visitors are admitted free, was in such a condition that it would be impossible for the people to find suitable standing room.

The pyrotechnics will take place under more favorable circumstances than any exhibition that has yet been given. In addition to the many new features that will be presented, the section of the Stadhum where the people will be allowed to stand will be covered with cinders and the ground will be leveled off so as to prevent pools of water gathering on the field. Electric lights will be installed and other arrangements to increase the comfort of visitors will be made.

During his stay here this time and on previous visits Mr. Wittmann has studied American industries and enterprises to a considerable extent and makes many comparisons between conditions as they exist in this country and in other countries he has visited. He is especially pleased with the street-car systems of the large cities of the United States, and thinks them superfor to those of any other country he has visited. St. Louis and Schenettady, he says, have the most complete systems he has had an opportunity of investigating.

One thing in American cities, and especially in St. Louis, that surprises foreigners, who expect to find the greatest advancement in all institutions, is, according to Mr. Wittmann, the great number of grade railway crossings. He says American cities are decidedly behind the cities of Europe in providing against accidents and delays at railway and street crossings.
